Subject: Re: ALASKA // BUNKER SUPPLY

Dear Zach,

It's imperative to take the bunkers as soon as possible as we are being charged with off hire by the vessel's charterers for the delay which obviously it's beyond the Owners control and obviously we don't want that. We were suppose to have taken the bunkers on the 6th had it not been for the bad weather. Today it's November 10. Owners are losing $35,000 per day since the 6th. That's a lot of money.

We understand that the weather has improved. I also understand that there is a queue of vessels to be supplied. What is earlier/latest our vessel will be supplied?

Please push because we are also being pushed by charterers and the uncollected freight. The vessel is in need of the bunkers. Please leverage your relationship with Statia to jump the queue, get the bunkers this morning and have the vessel resume the voyage ASAP.

Looking forward to your advice.

Best regards

George

Good evening Zach,

Please note the below update from Statia. Bunkering is still not possible as of this evening, but we will continue to check conditions and revert with any new news as available.

Thanks

Laura,

Called Nustar again? weather still has them shut down. Weather is suppose to possibly get better tonight?.but I cant say for sure.

The one ship the small one that came in close to the island is the only one got done so far.

Checking?meantime Nustar sending below

Good morning Zach,

As of right now, it depends on the anchorage position. The vessel that fueled was apx 10,000 GRT so they were able to bring her very close to the island. I will touch base with them again this morning and see what the outlook is for today.

Thanks

Dear Zachary,

As we have discussed over the phone, please check with Nustar why hasn't the vessel received the bunkers yet. It is imperative to take the bunkers as soon as possible and avoid any further delays.

Looking forward to your feedback.

Good day,

Pls advise bunkering schedule and any reason for the delay.
Furthermore, vessel contacted with Bunker Master several times and informed us that there is no paper or any instruction from terminal for the bunkering operation of our vessel.

Yr prompt reply is highly appreciated.
